Areas of Focus

My areas of focus include functional and personalized medicine and nutrition to optimize genetic expression and overall health by assessing metabolic, infectious, gastrointestinal, neuropsychological, endocrine, immune, allergic, nutritional, toxicological and genomic risk factors. Using a broad spectrum of testing and experience, I have been able to create a system in which I aim to find the root cause of a health condition or genetic predisposition, and effectively target the deficiency, thereby allowing the body to heal itself. I have developed personalized nutritional protocols using supplementation and lifestyle modification that yield marked positive responses. These protocols have been developed using the experience I have gained through practice and published research-proven techniques.
